

Jennifer Chergo
08/26/03 02:09 PM

To: Brad Jeske <jmbrad@qwest.net>
cc:
cc:
Subject: Re:

Hi there. We will definitely take the suggestion of mailing a postcard into consideration for the future.

I understand the energy it takes to get plants growing here in water-challenged Colorado. We have some "before" and "after" pictures of your plants (we actually caught that section of your yard in the photos we were taking of the property next door that was being cleaned up). Based on those and on the personal observation of our field crew, we agree that some damage was done to your plants and we apologize for that. Our intent was to try to save them from the dust and the mess!

However, since the damage appears minimal, we can not reimburse you for those plants. What we will be happy to do instead, however, is to water those plants daily at the same time that we come out to water the new landscaping next door. We come out every day for 30 days after the work is finished next door to you. All watering during that time will be free of charge to you, of course.

I sincerely hope this will be satisfactory.
Thanks again for your patience.
-jc

Brad Jeske <jmbrad@qwest.net>

Brad Jeske
<jmbrad@qwest.net>
08/26/03 10:32 AM

To: Jennifer Chergo/OCP/R8/USEPA/US@EPA
cc:
Subject: Re:

Thank you. It's just that we spent a lot of money, time, water, and energy on making our easement beautiful this summer and wouldn't have bothered on that side of the yard if we had known this was going to happen.

I think a postcard to the surrounding neighbors warning about the mess and noise and trucks would be a good idea.

Michelle

